LISTENING DESCRIPTION -- 475

In face-to face communications, a person at this level should be able to understand...

- the essentials of all speech;
- most professionally related topics;
- technical subjects;
- general topics and areas of special interest.

In addition, a person at this level should also be able to understand with facility...

- the essentials of conversation between native speakers;
- messages communicated through broadcast media; and
- public addresses.

READING DESCRIPTION -- 450

At this level a person should be able to read...

- any type of text;
- routine correspondence;
- technical material of special interest.
- items in periodicals;
- general reports;
- materials which include hypothesis, argumentation and supported opinions.

A person at this level...

- rarely misreads material correctly
- is almost always able to relate ideas
- rarely has to pause over, or reread general vocabulary;
- may have problems with complex structures and infrequently used idioms.
- almost always understands
- can "read between the lines"

At this level reading is not usually dependent on subject matter knowledge, but complete comprehension when reading material outside of general experience and not accompanied by an explanation depends heavily on cultural knowledge.
